NEARLY ENDED HIM

CAPT. GLADE BRADLEY NEAR DEATH FROM HUN BULLET

WAS IN ARGONNE FIGHT

In Letter to J. A. Ford Young Officer Says He Finds Conditions in Germany Much Better Than Expected.

Captain Glade Bradley of the U. S. A. 168th Infantry, who is with the army of occupation, writes to Mr. and Mrs. Jim Andy Ford of this city, from Brugfrohl, Germany, under date or January 12, as follows:

"I received a letter from Mr. Ford the other day dated August 19 and was glad to get a letter even that old. I have had only six letters from the States since September. We didn't get any mail up to the lines while we were fighting and then I got hit and when I got back to my organization they had sent all my mail to the hospital so you see I have been rather unfortunate with news from home. I got hit on October 16 while we were taking Hill 288 in the Argonne Forest. I had taken the objective assigned to my company and was consolidating the position and I guess I didn't uses enough precaution for my own good, anyway a "boche" sniper picked me out and let me have it through my left lung just below the collar bone and coming out my back just between the scapula and backbone. One of my [illegible] showed some signs of [illegible] were carrying me back and they carried me to the regimental dressing station three kilometers to the rear and Captain Burch, the doctor, got me in an ambulance and got me to the hospital where they operated on me and got the clotted blood off my lung and in five days I was out of danger. I am feeling as well as ever now only I haven't much wind and can't walk up hill very good but I am not going to do much work this winter as I don't want to get out and take cold.

I have a souvenir for Mr. Ford but am afraid to send it through the mail as there are so many souvenir "grabbers" between here and home. It is a watch I took off of a German officer in the St. Mihiel drive. I did have a lot of souvenirs but I had them in my bedding roll and it is lost and don't know whether I will get it or not They shipped it to me while I was in the hospital but I didn't get it I have sent a man to look for it but I don't know whether he will find it or not.

We are living mightly fine here. All the men have beds and good quarters. I have a living room, bed room and bath, but I figure if the people here have anything good, we are entitled to it before they are for if they had been the victors they would have thrown us out.

Had a very nice trip coming up here from the hospital through Paris, Metz. Treves and Coblenz, and the surprising feature of it was the good conditions I found. When I got into Metz I found better food than I did in Paris, only they eat black bread but they had all kinds of pies, cakes, etc., which is not found in Paris.

The people here are very accomodating and would be friendly if we gave them any encouragement. They all want a Republic and are nearly all socialists.

DIVIDE RANKIN INTERESTS

15,000 Acres in Northwest Missouri Are Distributed to Stockholders of Corporation.

Tarkio, Mo., Feb. 10.—An agreement was reached recently by the four stockholders of the Rankin Farms corporation whereby the bulk of their land holdings in Atchison county were divided. About 15,000 acres in this county were distributed to the four stockholders. The corporation, however, has not been dissolved and still holds large land interests in this county near Fairfax, in Fremont county, Iowa, near Riverton, and a ranch of several thousand acres near O'Neal Nebraska, besides the business buildings and town property in Tarkio.

The Atchison county land was parceled out according to a division originally made before the corporation was formed in 1907. The division was as follows: To John A. Rankin, [illegible] 7 and Ranches 10 and 11½; Mrs. J. F. Hanna of Riversire, Cal., Ranches No. 4, 6, and 8 and the west one-half of Sec. 15 of Ranch No. 5 and [illegible]ions 33 and 28 formerly in Ran[illegible]½; to Mrs. M. B. Griffen, Ranch [illegible], the home section at Ranch No. 1½ and Ranch 11.

The Rankin Farms corporation was organized in 1907, taking over the large land interests of David Rankin. The corporation has conducted a very large farming business during the twelve years of its existence. It farmed over 20,000 acres of fine farming land in this county besides several ranches in Iowa and Nebraska, and was famous throughout the entire country for its large operations in corn raising and stock feeding.

CONG. BOOHER RETURNS HOME

Called to Savannah Because of Sickess in His Family—Has Faith in the Peace Commission.

"I have great faith in our peace commission," said Congressman Charles F. Booher of Savannah, who was in the city yesterday, says today's St. Joseph Gazette. He has been at his home for the last two weeks because of sickness in his family. He thinks it possible that he will not return to Washington for the remainder of this session.

"We don't know much about what is taking place over there, or course," the Fourth district representative said, "but we are unselfish in our aims, and actuated by high ideals. President Wilson is the greatest historian in the world, to my way of thinking, and I do not believe European politics can offer any pitfalls which he will fail to discern in time to avoid them."

Congressman Booher thinks there will be a special session of congress, but does not think it will be called until late in the summer.

'HELL, WITH FLAMES'

BUT RALPH FOLDEN WRITES HE CAME THROUGH UNSCATHED

TRIBUTE TO CAPT. HANNA

Was His First Captain, a "Brave Man and the Finest I Ever Knew. Tells of His Experience.

Private Ralph E. Folden with the Company L, 4th Regiment Infantry, in Germany, writes as follows under date of December 27, 1918, to his sister at Quitman:

"Just received your letter this evening telling of Arthur Graves' death. He was at the same front that I was at that time. There was sure a hot battle there. Every minute I thought my time had come. But thank the good Lord I came out without a a scratch, only a bullet hole through my rifle, which was slung over my shoulder. Now if that isn't close enough to make chills run down your backbone. I sure would like to bring my rifle home for a keepsake.

"Say, you ought to see No Man's Land. It took us one whole night to go across it, and the distance is not over four miles where we crossed. It sure did rain that night. I have done no fighting in the trenches, but have walked and crawled through the woods in the mud, water and fire. I will never forget it.

"I sure wished that I had a kodak. I could have taken some fine pictures on this hike. I have seen many sights such as old castles and the like. I can tell you when I get home about it. Just now I am anxious to get rid of the 'cooties.' How would you like to have some of them for pets."

Under date of January 2, he writes:

"Am feeling fine, since I have been through hell. It was hell with flames, too.

"Just got my Christmas box. That was the first real candy I have had since I have been in France. I could stay in the army always if I could get a box like that every week.

"Looks like rain this morning, but that is nothing, it rains all the time.

"Uncle Sam has not paid me for three months. He can wait and pay me when I get back in the States if he wants to."

Under date of January 13, he writes:

"This is the darndest weather we are having. Trying to rain all the time.

"I was in the big city of Coblenz Saturday. Sure is some town. I am going to send you some postcards of the buildings. Went to a real good movie. It was a wild west picture and made me feel like I was at home for a while. I think I would be a better rider than a soldier.

"I saw a place in the paper where my old captain was killed September 16. Captain Hanna was my first captain. He was promoted to a major. He sure was a brave man and a fine one. The finest I ever knew.

"I am sending you a picture of myself taken in Germany."

BIG CROWD AT TRIAL

COURT ROOM FILLED AS ADKINS CASE IS HEARD

HORNBUCKLE ON STAND

Auto Dealer and Garage Owner Tells of Business Relations with Defendant and of Incidents at Fire.

The circuit court room was filled almost to capacity this morning when the trial of Mark M. Adkins of Elmo, charged with third degree arson was resumed, following the selection of a jury. The hearing of testimony began shortly before noon with James Hornbuckle of Clearmont, owner of the burned garage the first witness called. Adkins, accompanied by his wife and little child sat with his counsel, smiling at acquaintances in the court room and appearing to be enjoying the proceeding. At the call for witnesses to be sworn fully one-third of the persons in the court room arose in response to the summons from the court.

Hornbuckle, before telling of the fire and incidents in connection with the burning of the garage, in answer to questions by L. C. Cook, of the prosecution, told of bringing a replevin suit against Adkins for recovery of an automobile and of subsequent conversations with Adkins in which the defendant told him in substance that he was going to see the thing through and that if he couldn't use the car he would see to it that it wouldn't be of any use to Hornbuckle.

Hornbuckle told of being notified of the fire and of going to the garage where he later found that the gasoline pump had been broken open and of finding evidence that gasoline had been drawn from the tank, some of the fluid being spilled on the ground from the hose. A bucket used to carry water was missing from its accustomed place and was found to be near the front door. Hornbuckle told of notifying the sheriff's office and of the arrival of Deputies Romasser and Albert Dowden, and the efforts they made to find a clue that would lead to the guilty parties.

At the afternoon session Mr. Gregory in charge of the repair department told practically the same story of the fire as had Hornbuckle. He was followed on the stand by Henry Gonn, a carpenter wh told of hearing an automobile pass his house in th enight going west.

The jury hearing the case is composed of Nick Thull, John Halasey, Sam McClurg, D A. Appleby, Mark Heflin, Robt. W. Graham, Thomas Kane, Preston Curnutt, J. W. DeMott, Hal Hooker, Henry Heitman, Albert Hinton.

ON LONG VOYAGES

MERCHANT CRUISERS TO CARRY BIG CREWS OF YANKEE BOYS

TRAINING FOR SERVICE

U. S. Shipping Board Reveals Ambitious Plan for Giving New Merchant Marine Worthy Personnel of Americans.

Washington, Feb. 11.—An announcement made today by the United states Shipping Board reveals ambitious plans for giving the new merchant marine a worthy personnel of high-grade Americans, in every rating from stokehold to bridge.

The plan provides for a fleet of merchant cruisers—no less—for taking the American boys on long voyages and teaching them the ropes as mariners. The cruisers not only will be of the seagoing type, but of the largest construction. They are, in fact, vessels chosen from the new national cargo fleet, and assigned by the Shipping board to its recruiting service, for the sole purpose of serving as cruising training ships.

Two vessels are designated as the first to be thus converted to the uses of the Board's training system. Both have been ordered from the builder's yard to Boston, Mass., for equipment which will give them accommodations for not less than 300 apprentices each.

The first of these two will be ready to start her first cruise next month. The other will follow her to sea in a few days. Both will make harbors on the Atlantic coast from time to time, but each will plow blue waters days on end and will seek latitudes that will give the boys aboard a taste of adventure under distant skies.

Furthermore, there will be one feature about these schoolships of the merchant marine as novel as the ships themselves—they will carry cargoes.

Definite voyages on definite purposes to stated ports with business responsibilities attached are a distinct novelty, so far as training lads for service under the American flag is concerned.

Training ships operated by various states are floating academies and good ones, but actual commerce has never been part of their curriculum. The same has been true to date of the training ships used by the Shipping Board while this country was at war—to drill the largest number of young men possible in a given time for service in the merchant marine.

The return of peace conditions has enabled the Shipping Board to apply the most advanced methods to its training service for a permanent personnel to be used in the nation's program for sea trade expansion, and the cargo-carrying idea for its commerce cruisers is its first big step under those conditions.

The commerce cruiser of the Shipping Board is quite unlike the old-fashioned schoolship. It has no lofty spars, nor complicated rigging. It has, on the other hand, big and powerful engines, mighty boilers and capacious cargo holds.

These three items are more important, under the Board's plan of training, than the old-time attributes to sailing seamanship. Experience in the fireroom is the bedrock on which the board will build its training of engineers, while experience in cargo handling is to be employed to the limit to train young men in an art of sea trade which later will result in a supply of experienced officers, shippers of goods, trade agents at home and abroad, or consular agents to look after the country's foreign trade interests.

All these important posts are the goal of the boys who now go into the merchant marine. Seagoing is more than mere sailoring under the new rules.

But sailoring will not be neglected. Apprentice seamen on the commerce cruisers will have just as thorough technical training as the apprentice firemen and oilers and watertenders down below decks.

Plotting courses, steering a good course, keeping a bright lookout, boxing the compass accurately, higher navigation—all will be within reach of the seaman on the new-type schoolship with the trade features of his training thrown in for good measure.

During the big broil the United States Shipping Board maintained six training ships and four station ships for merchant marine apprentices. These were secured and equipped in record time, to meet an emergency. A majority were coastwise vessels, the best then available, which served their purpose, but which were not suited to permanent use, owing to their limited cruising radius.

It chanced, however, that on the west coast one of the training ships was of seagoing type. This was the Iris, a staunch old English-built freighter that in the war against Spain and its succeeding period of naval expansion was used by Dewey at Manila as an auxiliary to his fleet.

Time dealt kindly with the Iris, so that when the merchant marine emergency arose in 1917 the old vessel was readily available for use as a training ship at San Francisco. She was speedily equipped as such under the direction of Captain Isaac N. Hibberd of that city, a veteran Cape Horn skipper and a practical steamship man, who now is chief of the Shipping Board's training bureau.

Long cruises in the misty and rolling Pacific showed the Iris to be a first class blue water vessel. Her graduates were enthusiastic about her. In fact, she was so good she proved the pioneer of the new idea program, and now the commerce cruisers are the Iris repeated, with the cargo-carrying feature added.

Mr. and Mrs. Will H. Allen will leave tonight for St. Louis to attend the funeral tomorrow afternoon of Mrs. Allen's sister, Mrs. Louis S. Klingler, who died Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Klingler was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Knopp of Beards town, Ill. She had visited on numerous occasions with the Allen family here and was known to quite a number of people. She was 34 years old and besides her parents and sister, is survived by her husband and a two year old son, Robert Byron. Mrs. Klingler's death was due to pneumonia which resulted from an attack of influenaz.

DON'T SUFFER WITH NEURALGIA

Use Soothing Musterole

When those sharp pains go shooting through your head, when your skull seems as if it would split, just rub a little Musterole on your temples and neck. It draws out the inflammation, soothes away the pain, usually giving quick relief.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. Better than a mustard plaster and does not blister.

Many doctors and nurses frankly recommend Musterole for sore throat, bronchitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet — colds of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia). It is always dependable.

CLOCKS UP AGAIN

DAYLIGHT SAVING BEGINS LAST SATURDAY IN MARCH

THE RESULT LAST YEAR

National War Garden Commission Furnishes Interesting Figures of What the New Law Does.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—Do not forget to turn the clock one hour ahead when you go to bed on the last Saturday night in March for the Daylight Saving Law goes into effect on the last Sunday next month.

The National War Garden Commission is getting inquiries from all over the country as to whether this law continues, so as to set your mind at rest here is the law:

"That at 2 o'clock ante-meridian of the last Sunday in March of each year the standard time of each zone shall be advanced one hour, and at 2 o'clock ante-meridian of the last Sunday in October in each year the standard time of each zone shall, by the retarding of one, be returned to the mean astronomical time of the degree of longitude governing each zone, respectively."

Never mind about the October part of it. The thing to remember is the March end of the programme and thus get started right. Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the National War Gardens Commission, gives a great deal of credit for the great war garden record of 1918 to the Daylight Savings law. According to the estimates by the Commission the war garden crop was worth $535,000,000. This was an increase of 51 per cent over that of 1917.

The Commission's survey showed that 5,285,000 home food producing plots were planted. With 26 working days in each of the seven months you have 182 extra hours of time. If only one gardener worked this extra hour of time in each plot it will be seen that 967,870,000 hours of extra time were added to the country's wealth. Since there are 8,760 hours in a year you find the staggering total of 109,803 years of 24-hour days.

In an eight-hour working day the real advantage is found by multiplying 109,803 by 3, givig 329,409 working, or eight-hour day years. Importance of this extra time cannot be overestimated in the opinion of Mr. Pack.

"We must help feed the peoples of Europe," says Mr. Pack. "Will you have a part in the great work at hand? Next to the sun the extra hour of daylight is the best friend the victory gardener has. Will you meet the sun half way? Will you be up to take advantage of the health-giving garden work in the cool of the morning? Have the spade and the hoe handy and turn the clock ahead one hour on the last Saturday night in March and be ready for the biggest home food producing year the country ever saw."

FRANCE GIVES AID TO AMERICA

The pouring out of French blood and the enormous financial sacrifices are not the only aid France has given America. We are indebted to the French peasants for a perfect remedy for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments which has not only been marvelously successful over there, but has been equally so over here. The ingredients are imported and put up for sale in this country by Geo. H. Mayr, for many years a leading Chicago hem-ist, , under the name of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.

DO YOU KNOW THEM?

WELL KNOWN PEOPLE IN MISSOURI'S HALL OF FAME

31 ARE IN HISTORY LIST

Mark Twain Is Given First Place in State Historical Records—Only One Woman Is Named.

Do you know Missouri's greatest woman reformer? Do you know two of Missouri's great artists? Do you know of three Missouri Journalists who have national reputations?

All these questions are answered and many other interesting facts and anecdotes are told in "Missouri's Hall of Fame" by Floyd C. Shoemaker, secretary of the State Historical Society of Missouri, which has recently been published. This books is composed of thirty-one short biographical sketches which tell in a short and simple style of the men and women who have contributed to the making of Missouri's customs, laws, literature, and sentiment. It is written to be used in the graded schools and has been recommended by the state superintendent of schools for supplementary reading in the sixth and seventh grades and for textbook reading in the eighth grade by the state superintendent of schools.

Mark Twain Comes First.

The book opens with a sketch of the life and character of Missouri's foremost writer and America's greatest humorist, Mark Twain. Along with the general outline of the life of Mark Twain are sprinkled little characteristic sketches of him, both as a writer and as a man. The story, "The Celebrated Jumping 'Frog of Calaveras County,'" which is said to have made Mark Twain famous, is printed in full.

The well known story of Mark Twain and the reporter is also given. A reporter once asked Mark Twain's advice as to what he should say to his paper which had erroneously printed that the great humorist was dead. "Say that statement of my death is greatly exaggerated," said Twain.

Mr. Shoemaker next takes up Eugene Field whom he calls the poet laureate of the children He tells in an entertaining way of "Gene's" years at the University of Missouri and quotes in full his most widely known poem "Little Boy Blue."

Carl Wimar, Missouri's great painter of Indians and George Caleb Bingham, painter of early frontier scenes, are told of. Neither, says Mr. Shoemaker, were great artists as compared to the celebrated painters of the world but both had more than ordinary talent and both were strictly American in the work.

Lewis and Clark Expedition.

The story of the Lewis and Clark Expedition into the unknown West is given in a joint biographical sketch of Meriwether Lewis anad William Clark, Missouri's two explorers. Lewis, then private secretary to President Jefferson, was asked by him to undertake the exploration of the land west of the Mississippi. Together with Clark, Lewis set out, and after a year and a half of struggle and adventure, they sighted the Pacific ocean.

James B. Eads is Missouri's greatest engineer and inventor. As the builder of the Eads bridge across the Mississippi River, then the greatest bridge in the world, and as one of the great engineers of the world, Eads was what he had made himself. He was a self-educated man. Many men have succeded without a college education in other professions but few in engineering.

Prominent Journalists.

Missouri's three men who have won national and international reputations in Journalism are Joseph B. McCullagh, William R. Nelson and Walter Williams. As editor of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat McCallagh made a success. He made a paper with an honest policy and a large circulation.

In starting and editing the Kansas City Star Nelson established the paper of the Middle West and made it one of the greatest conservative papers of this country.

Walter Williams showed in editing the Columbia Missouri Herald that the greatest editors do not always come from the ranks of the city editors. He made his paper the best country weekly in the state and gained world reputation. Williams was the first president of the Press Congress of the World and the first dean of the School of Journalism of the University of Missouri.

Only One Woman.

Only one woman is classed in Missouri's Hall of Fame by Mr. Shoemaker. This is Clara Hoffman, called Missouri's Great Heart. Mrs. Hoffman was the first president of the Missouri W. C. T. U. and worked faithfully all her life in the fight against the saloon.

Alexander W. Doniphan and John J. Pershing are given as Missouri's two great soldiers.Doniphan fought against the Mormons in the Far West, and was a general during the Mexican Wara. Doniphan's Expedition of One Thousand Missourians is famous this country over. John J. Pershing has received the highest military honor of this country in being America's commanding general in France. By several human sketches of him and his life Mr. Shoemaker makes us see John Pershing, the man not the commander.

Many Are Statesmen.

From the rank of statesmen come most of those in Missouri's Hall of Fame. The first two delegates to Congress from the territory of Missouri and Missouri's first Congressman are told of in sketches of Edward Hempstead, Rufus Easton and John Scott. David Barton, nicknamed Little Red, was Missouri's first United States Senator. Thomas Hart Benton was the other senator and he is classed in this book as the greatest statesman of the West. It was he that pointed out the possibility of great trade relations with the Far East and in doing so made the famous statement that all Missourians have heard, "There is the East, theis is India." Three other famous senators from Missouri are also sketched, Lewis L. Linn, David Atchison and James S Green. Lewis Linn is called the model senator from Missouri.

James S. Rollins is termed by Mr. Shoemaker, "the father of the University of Missouri." By speaking in favor of a bill to establish the University of Missouri he influenced its passage. He served both in the State Legislature and in Congress and in both places was a strong advocate for better and more advanced education. While in Congress he introduced the bill establishing the Missouri State College of Agriculture.

First Cabinet Member.

Edward Bates was the first man west of the Mississippi to hold a cabinet office. He was appointed Attorney-General of the United States in President Lincoln's cabinet.

A statesman, soldier and leader of men was Frank P. Blair. His statute stands in Washington today with that f Thomas Hart Benton as the two representative men of Missouri. Blair was one of the stanch Democrats of the old time days but he opposed their stand on the slavery question. Blair was a close friend of President Lincoln and was one of the most influential men of his day.

James Shields, soldier and statesman, is claimed by three states and in the making of all of these three states he was influential. He was a veteran of three wars, the Seminole War, the Mexican War, and the Civil War, and he was United States Senator from three states, Illinois, Minnesota and Missouri.

Author of 13th Amendment.

The author of the thirteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States, which abolished slavery, was John Brooks Henderson. The career of Henderson in public life was short, according to Mr. Shoemaker, but in the short time he served he achieved much

Succeeding Henderson as United States Senator was Carl Schurz, states man, orator and journalist. As a lover of democracy he was its ardent exponent on all occasions. After serving in the Senate he was editor of several papers, going at last to be editor of Harper's Weekly. Schurz is also claimed by three states but it is in Missouri that he performed his greatest service.

A Senator for 30 Years.

Francis Marion Cockrell was senator from Missouri for thirty years. Cockrell was so highly respected that, although a Democrat, which meant that he must retire from the Senate when the Republican President, Roosevelt, came in, he was appointed as a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Roosevelt, in giving his reason for doing this, said that the government could not afford to lose such a faithful and courageous servant.

One of Missouri's greatest lawyers was George Graham Vest, called Missouri'e Little Giant. He also served for many years in the United States Senate.

Richard Pars Bland is represented to us by Mr. Shoemaker as a man of the people, a man who by his sheer will and thorough honesty rose to be one of the greatest public men this state has ever had. He served twelve terms in Congress and had been elected to the thirteenth term at the time of his death.

A Good Citizen.

A man from Missouri who will be remembered always for his service as a soldier and as a statesman but most of all as a public citizen is William Warner, a native of Wisconsin but a true Missourian by life and work

The last chapter in this books is devoted to Champ Clark, Missouri's first speaker in the House of Representatives. The career of Champ Clark is not yet ended but the completed part of it has been most interesting. Mr. Shoemaker tells of his political career, his love of books and children and ends the account with several of the famous Champ Clark sayings among which is that one: "He serves his party best who serves his country best."

Filling—1 cup ground raisins, 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup boiling water; cook until quite thick. Roll the cookies very thin, cut out and put a teaspoon of filling on each cookie. Then place another one on top, pressing the edges well together. Bake in quick oven.

TO GO SIGHTSEEING IN EUROPE

Overseas Forces Are Given Permission to Visit France and England Before Coming Home.

London, (By Mail).—The American Doughboy again has hopes of becoming a "tripper' and seeing something of England before he is demobilized back to the U. S. A.

Thousands of the boys in France had builded hopes upon prospect of leave with privilege of spending the time in England. The ruling that the Yanks could not come across the channel has been followed by this cable, posted on the bulletin boards, which brings news of affairs back home:

"Washington—Liberal policy granting furloughs to members of oversea forces to visit England and other countries in Europe, has been adopted by General Pershing with the consent of the War Department."

It has always been a part of the educative policy of the War Department at Washington to allow American soldiers, when abroad, to see and learn as much of the countries and people they visit as possible. It had practically been decided when the armistice was signed to allow men to come to England on leave in large numbers. This was vetoed by the Medical Division of the War Department, which objected to the climatic conditions in England, and to the crowded condition of her cities. To a large extent both of these objections have been met by the American Y. M. C. A., and other organizations, which can accommodate and look after about 6,000 men daily.

George W. Perkins, chairman of the finance committee of the National War Council, when in London recently, did not believe at that time that many U. S. soldiers would be given leave to visit England, en route to America, but the cable from Washington indicates that leave to a limited number of men per month may be again allowed.

Washington Banker Tells Senate Committee Comptroller of Treasury "Terrorizes Banking World"

Washington, Feb. 11.—John Skelton Williams, renominated by President Wilson as controller of the treasury, has so "terrorized the banking world that few bankers dare to come to Washington to give testimony against him," Wade Cooper, president of the Union Savings Ban kof this city told the senate banking and currency committee today. Cooper was testifying on the Weeks resolution abolishing the office of controller of treasury. He had spoken only a few sentences when the committee decided by a vote of five to four to hear him in executive session.

FUNSTON "ZONE" IS GONE.

Junction City, Kan., Feb. 10.—The famous "Camp Funston Zone," the first and said to be the only one of its kind in connection with an army camp has "silently folded its tents" and gone its way.

More than 100,000 men have been trained here, and all of them have patronized the zone, which boasted every kind of shop except a millinery shop along its broad street. Anything almost a soldier wanted to buy could be had. When camp officials notified the shop owners that after February 1 but 10,000 men would be located here, they decided it was time to move.

T A GAME WITH WESLEYANS

Normals Will Take on the Cameron Five Saturday Night—Two Other Games To Be Played at Home

Coach Merlin Sims announces the scheduling of a basketball game with Missouri Wesleyan College of Cameron to be played here Saturday night. This game is substituted for the contest with Westminster College of Fayette, which had been scheduled for tomorrow night aand which was canceled yesterday by the Westminster officials.

The Normal authorities have been having an unusual amount of trouble in getting games this season, this being the second game to be canceled by a visiting team. A game with the Springfield Normal five was called off by the Springfield school because of a misunderstanding between that school and Tarkio college. Tarkio refused to make the southern trip and Springfield thereupon cancelled her proposed swing around the northern end of the circuit.

The Westminster game was cancelled for a similar reason, Westeminster refusing to make the trip unless a game could be played with Missouri Wesleyan on the same trip This Westminster claims the Cameron college refused to do, while Cameron lays the blame at Westminster's door. Coach Sims immediately got into communication with both schools and succeeded in scheduling the game with Missouri Wesleyan for Saturday night.

Besides the Wesleyan game Saturday at least two more games will be played here, and both of these are expected to be big attractions, one of them being with the ancient rival, Tarkio, and the other with Kansas City Polytechnic Institute, one of the fastest aggregations in the state

WAS IN ARGONNE FIGHT

In Letter to J. A. Ford Young Officer Says He Finds Conditions in Germany Much Better Than Expected.

Captain Glade Bradley of the U. S. A. 168th Infantry, who is with the army of occupation, writes to Mr. and Mrs. Jim Andy Ford of this city, from Brugfrohl, Germany, under date or January 12, as follows:

"I received a letter from Mr. Ford the other day dated August 19 and was glad to get a letter even that old. I have had only six letters from the States since September. We didn't get any mail up to the lines while we were fighting and then I got hit and when I got back to my organization they had sent all my mail to the hospital so you see I have been rather unfortunate with news from home. I got hit on October 16 while we were taking Hill 288 in the Argonne Forest. I had taken the objective assigned to my company and was consolidating the position and I guess I didn't uses enough precaution for my own good, anyway a "boche" sniper picked me out and let me have it through my left lung just below the collar bone and coming out my back just between the scapula and backbone. One of my [illegible] when [illegible] showed some signs of [illegible] were carrying me back and they carried me to the regimental dressing station three kilometers to the rear and Captain Burch, the doctor, got me in an ambulance and got me to the hospital where they operated on me and got the clotted blood off my lung and in five days I was out of danger. I am feeling as well as ever now only I haven't much wind and can't walk up hill very good but I am not going to do much work this winter as I don't want to get out and take cold.

I have a souvenir for Mr. Ford but am afraid to send it through the mail as there are so many souvenir "grabbers" between here and home. It is a watch I took off of a German officer in the St. Mihiel drive. I did have a lot of souvenirs but I had them in my bedding roll and it is lost and don't know whether I will get it or not They shipped it to me while I was in the hospital but I didn't get it I have sent a man to look for it but I don't know whether he will find it or not.

We are living mightly fine here. All the men have beds and good quarters. I have a living room, bed room and bath, but I figure if the people here have anything good, we are entitled to it before they are for if they had been the victors they would have thrown us out.

Had a very nice trip coming up here from the hospital through Paris, Metz, Treves and Coblenz, and the surprising feature of it was the good conditions I found. When I got into Metz I found better food than I did in Paris, only they eat black bread but they had all kinds of pies, cakes, etc., which is not found in Paris.

The people here are very accomodating and would be friendly if we gave them any encouragement. They all want a Republic and are nearly all socialists.

DIVIDE RANKIN INTERESTS

15,000 Acres in Northwest Missouri Are Distributed to Stockholders of Corporation.

Tarkio, Mo., Feb. 10.—An agreement was reached recently by the four stockholders of the Rankin Farms corporation whereby the bulk of their land holdings in Atchison county were divided. About 15,000 acres in this county were distributed to the four stockholders. The corporation, however, has not been dissolved and still holds large land interests in this county near Fairfax, in Fremont county, Iowa, near Riverton, and a ranch of several thousand acres near O'Neal Nebraska, besides the business buildings and town property in Tarkio.

The Atchison county land was parceled out according to a division originally made before the corporation was formed in 1907. The division was as follows: To John A. Rankin, [illegible] 7 and Ranches 10 and 11½; Mrs. J. F. Hanna of Riversire, Cal., Ranches No. 4, 6, and 8 and the west one-half of Sec. 15 of Ranch No. 5 and [illegible] sections 33 and 28 formerly in Ranch [illegible]; to Mrs. M. B. Griffin, Ranch [illegible], the home section at Ranch No. 1½ and Ranch 11.

The Rankin Farms corporation was organized in 1907, taking over the large land interests of David Rankin. The corporation has conducted a very large farming business during the twelve years of its existence. It farmed over 20,000 acres of fine farming land in this county besides several ranches in Iowa and Nebraska, and was famous throughout the entire country for its large operations in corn raising and stock feeding.

CONG. BOOHER RETURNS HOME

Called to Savannah Because of Sickess in His Family—Has Faith in the Peace Commission.

"I have great faith in our peace commission," said Congressman Charles F. Booher of Savannah, who was in the city yesterday, says today's St. Joseph Gazette. He has been at his home for the last two weeks because of sickness in his family. He thinks it possible that he will not return to Washington for the remainder of this session.

"We don't know much about what is taking place over there, or course," the Fourth district representative said, "but we are unselfish in our aims, and actuated by high ideals. President Wilson is the greatest historian in the world, to my way of thinking, and I do not believe European politics can offer any pitfalls which he will fail to discern in time to avoid them."

Congressman Booher thinks there will be a special session of congress, but does not think it will be called until late in the summer.

'HELL, WITH FLAMES'

BUT RALPH FOLDEN WRITES HE CAME THROUGH UNSCATHED

TRIBUTE TO CAPT. HANNA

Was His First Captain, a "Brave Man and the Finest I Ever Knew. Tells of His Experience.

Private Ralph E. Folden with the Company L, 4th Regiment Infantry, in Germany, writes as follows under date of December 27, 1918, to his sister at Quitman:

"Just received your letter this evening telling of Arthur Graves' death. He was at the same front that I was at that time. There was sure a hot battle there. Every minute I thought my time had come. But thank the good Lord I came out without a a scratch, only a bullet hole through my rifle, which was slung over my shoulder. Now if that isn't close enough to make chills run down your backbone. I sure would like to bring my rifle home for a keepsake.

"Say, you ought to see No Man's Land. It took us one whole night to go across it, and the distance is not over four miles where we crossed. It sure did rain that night. I have done no fighting in the trenches, but have walked and crawled through the woods in the mud, water and fire. I will never forget it.

"I sure wished that I had a kodak. I could have taken some fine pictures on this hike. I have seen many sights such as old castles and the like. I can tell you when I get home about it. Just now I am anxious to get rid of the 'cooties.' How would you like to have some of them for pets."

Under date of January 2, he writes:

"Am feeling fine, since I have been through hell. It was hell with flames, too.

"Just got my Christmas box. That was the first real candy I have had since I have been in France. I could stay in the army always if I could get a box like that every week.

"Looks like rain this morning, but that is nothing, it rains all the time.

"Uncle Sam has not paid me for three months. He can wait and pay me when I get back in the States if he wants to."

Under date of January 13, he writes:

"This is the darndest weather we are having. Trying to rain all the time.

"I was in the big city of Coblenz Saturday. Sure is some town. I am going to send you some postcards of the buildings. Went to a real good movie. It was a wild west picture and made me feel like I was at home for a while. I think I would be a better rider than a soldier.

"I saw a place in the paper where my old captain was killed September 16. Captain Hanna was my first captain. He was promoted to a major. He sure was a brave man and a fine one. The finest I ever knew.

"I am sending you a picture of myself taken in Germany."

BIG CROWD AT TRIAL

COURT ROOM FILLED AS ADKINS CASE IS HEARD

HORNBUCKLE ON STAND

Auto Dealer and Garage Owner Tells of Business Relations with Defendant and of Incidents at Fire.

The circuit court room was filled almost to capacity this morning when the trial of Mark M. Adkins of Elmo, charged with third degree arson was resumed, following the selection of a jury. The hearing of testimony began shortly before noon with James Hornbuckle of Clearmont, owner of the burned garage the first witness called. Adkins, accompanied by his wife and little child sat with his counsel, smiling at acquaintances in the court room and appearing to be enjoying the proceeding. At the call for witnesses to be sworn fully one-third of the persons in the court room arose in response to the summons from the court.

Hornbuckle, before telling of the fire and incidents in connection with the burning of the garage, in answer to questions by L. C. Cook, of the prosecution, told of bringing a replevin suit against Adkins for recovery of an automobile and of subsequent conversations with Adkins in which the defendant told him in substance that he was going to see the thing through and that if he couldn't use the car he would see to it that it wouldn't be of any use to Hornbuckle.

Hornbuckle told of being notified of the fire and of going to the garage where he later found that the gasoline pump had been broken open and of finding evidence that gasoline had been drawn from the tank, some of the fluid being spilled on the ground from the hose. A bucket used to carry water was missing from its accustomed place and was found to be near the front door. Hornbuckle told of notifying the sheriff's office and of the arrival of Deputies Romasser and Albert Dowden, and the efforts they made to find a clue that would lead to the guilty parties.

At the afternoon session Mr. Gregory in charge of the repair department told practically the same story of the fire as had Hornbuckle. He was followed on the stand by Henry Gonn, a carpenter wh told of hearing an automobile pass his house in th enight going west.

The jury hearing the case is composed of Nick Thull, John Halasey, Sam McClurg, O. A. Appleby, Mark Heflin, Robt. W. Graham, Thomas Kane, Preston Curnutt, J. W. DeMott, Hal Hooker, Henry Heitman, Albert Hinton.

ON LONG VOYAGES

MERCHANT CRUISERS TO CARRY BIG CREWS OF YANKEE BOYS

TRAINING FOR SERVICE

U. S. Shipping Board Reveals Ambitious Plan for Giving New Merchant Marine Worthy Personnel of Americans.

Washington, Feb. 11.—An announcement made today by the United states Shipping Board reveals ambitious plans for giving the new merchant marine a worthy personnel of high-grade Americans, in every rating from stokehold to bridge.

The plan provides for a fleet of merchant cruisers—no less—for taking the American boys on long voyages and teaching them the ropes as mariners. The cruisers not only will be of the seagoing type, but of the largest construction. They are, in fact, vessels chosen from the new national cargo fleet, and assigned by the Shipping board to its recruiting service, for the sole purpose of serving as cruising training ships.

Two vessels are designated as the first to be thus converted to the uses of the Board's training system. Both have been ordered from the builder's yard to Boston, Mass., for equipment which will give them accommodations for not less than 300 apprentices each.

The first of these two will be ready to start her first cruise next month. The other will follow her to sea in a few days. Both will make harbors on the Atlantic coast from time to time, but each will plow blue waters days on end and will seek latitudes that will give the boys aboard a taste of adventure under distant skies.

Furthermore, there will be one feature about these schoolships of the merchant marine as novel as the ships themselves—they will carry cargoes.

Definite voyages on definite purposes to stated ports with business responsibilities attached are a distinct novelty, so far as training lads for service under the American flag is concerned.

Training ships operated by various states are floating academies and good ones, but actual commerce has never been part of their curriculum. The same has been true to date of the training ships used by the Shipping Board while this country was at war—to drill the largest number of young men possible in a given time for service in the merchant marine.

The return of peace conditions has enabled the Shipping Board to apply the most advanced methods to its training service for a permanent personnel to be used in the nation's program for sea trade expansion, and the cargo-carrying idea for its commerce cruisers is its first big step under those conditions.

The commerce cruiser of the Shipping Board is quite unlike the old-fashioned schoolship. It has no lofty spars, nor complicated rigging. It has, on the other hand, big and powerful engines, mighty boilers and capacious cargo holds.

These three items are more important, under the Board's plan of training, than the old-time attributes to sailing seamanship. Experience in the fireroom is the bedrock on which the board will build its training of engineers, while experience in cargo handling is to be employed to the limit to train young men in an art of sea trade which later will result in a supply of experienced officers, shippers of goods, trade agents at home and abroad, or consular agents to look after the country's foreign trade interests."

All these important posts are the goal of the boys who now go into the merchant marine. Seagoing is more than mere sailoring under the new rules.

But sailoring will not be neglected. Apprentice seamen on the commerce cruisers will have just as thorough technical training as the apprentice firemen and oilers and watertenders down below decks.

Plotting courses, steering a good course, keeping a bright lookout, boxing the compass accurately, higher navigation—all will be within reach of the seaman on the new-type schoolship with the trade features of his training thrown in for good measure.

During the big broil the United States Shipping Board maintained six training ships and four station ships for merchant marine apprentices. These were secured and equipped in record time, to meet an emergency. A majority were coastwise vessels, the best then available, which served their purpose, but which were not suited to permanent use, owing to their limited cruising radius.

It chanced, however, that on the west coast one of the training ships was of seagoing type. This was the Iris, a staunch old English-built freighter that in the war against Spain and its succeeding period of naval expansion was used by Dewey at Manila as an auxiliary to his fleet.

Time dealt kindly with the Iris, so that when the merchant marine emergency arose in 1917 the old vessel was readily available for use as a training ship at San Francisco. She was speedily equipped as such under the direction of Captain Isaac N. Hibberd of that city, a veteran Cape Horn skipper and a practical steamship man, who now is chief of the Shipping Board's training bureau.

Long cruises in the misty and rolling Pacific showed the Iris to be a first class blue water vessel. Her graduates were enthusiastic about her. In fact, she was so good she proved the pioneer of the new idea program, and now the commerce cruisers are the Iris repeated, with the cargo-carrying feature added.

CLOCKS UP AGAIN

DAYLIGHT SAVING BEGINS LAST SATURDAY IN MARCH

THE RESULT LAST YEAR

National War Garden Commission Furnishes Interesting Figures of What the New Law Does.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—Do not forget to turn the clock one hour ahead when you go to bed on the last Saturday night in March for the Daylight Saving Law goes into effect on the last Sunday next month.

The National War Garden Commission is getting inquiries from all over the country as to whether this law continues, so as to set your mind at rest here is the law:

"That at 2 o'clock ante-meridian of the last Sunday in March of each year the standard time of each zone shall be advanced one hour, and at 2 o'clock ante-meridian of the last Sunday in October in each year the standard time of each zone shall, by the retarding of one, be returned to the mean astronomical time of the degree of longitude governing each zone, respectively."

Never mind about the October part of it. The thing to remember is the March end of the programme and thus get started right. Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the National War Gardens Commission, gives a great deal of credit for the great war garden record of 1918 to the Daylight Savings law. According to the estimates by the Commission the war garden crop was worth $535,000,000. This was an increase of 51 per cent over that of 1917.

The Commission's survey showed that 5,285,000 home food producing plots were planted. With 26 working days in each of the seven months you have 182 extra hours of time. If only one gardener worked this extra hour of time in each plot it will be seen that 967,870,000 hours of extra time were added to the country's wealth. Since there are 8,760 hours in a year you find the staggering total of 109,803 years of 24-hour days.

In an eight-hour working day the real advantage is found by multiplying 109,803 by 3, givig 329,409 working, or eight-hour day years. Importance of this extra time cannot be overestimated in the opinion of Mr. Pack.

"We must help feed the peoples of Europe," says Mr. Pack. "Will you have a part in the great work at hand? Next to the sun the extra hour of daylight is the best friend the victory gardener has. Will you meet the sun half way? Will you be up to take advantage of the health-giving garden work in the cool of the morning? Have the spade and the hoe handy and turn the clock ahead one hour on the last Saturday night in March and be ready for the biggest home food producing year the country ever saw."

DO YOU KNOW THEM?

WELL KNOWN PEOPLE IN MISSOURI'S HALL OF FAME

31 ARE IN HISTORY LIST

Mark Twain Is Given First Place in State Historical Records—Only One Woman Is Named.

Do you know Missouri's greatest woman reformer? Do you know two of Missouri's great artists? Do you know of three Missouri Journalists who have national reputations?

All these questions are answered and many other interesting facts and anecdotes are told in "Missouri's Hall of Fame" by Floyd C. Shoemaker, secretary of the State Historical Society of Missouri, which has recently been published. This books is composed of thirty-one short biographical sketches which tell in a short and simple style of the men and women who have contributed to the making of Missouri's customs, laws, literature, and sentiment. It is written to be used in the graded schools and has been recommended by the state superintendent of schools for supplementary reading in the sixth and seventh grades and for textbook reading in the eighth grade by the state superintendent of schools.

Mark Twain Comes First.

The book opens with a sketch of the life and character of Missouri's foremost writer and America's greatest humorist, Mark Twain. Along with the general outline of the life of Mark Twain are sprinkled little characteristic sketches of him, both as a writer and as a man. The story, "The Celebrated Jumping 'Frog of Calaveras County,'" which is said to have made Mark Twain famous, is printed in full.

The well known story of Mark Twain and the reporter is also given. A reporter once asked Mark Twain's advice as to what he should say to his paper which had erroneously printed that the great humorist was dead. "Say that statement of my death is greatly exaggerated," said Twain.

Mr. Shoemaker next takes up Eugene Field whom he calls the poet laureate of the children. He tells in an entertaining way of "Gene's" years at the University of Missouri and quotes in full his most widely known poem "Little Boy Blue."

Carl Wimar, Missouri's great painter of Indians and George Caleb Bingham, painter of early frontier scenes, are told of. Neither, says Mr. Shoemaker, were great artists as compared to the celebrated painters of the world but both had more than ordinary talent and both were strictly American in the work.

Lewis and Clark Expedition.

The story of the Lewis and Clark Expedition into the unknown West is given in a joint biographical sketch of Meriwether Lewis anad William Clark, Missouri's two explorers. Lewis, then private secretary to President Jefferson, was asked by him to undertake the exploration of the land west of the Mississippi. Together with Clark, Lewis set out, and after a year and a half of struggle and adventure, they sighted the Pacific ocean.

James B. Eads is Missouri's greatest engineer and inventor. As the builder of the Eads bridge across the Mississippi River, then the greatest bridge in the world, and as one of the great engineers of the world, Eads was what he had made himself. He was a self-educated man. Many men have succeded without a college education in other professions but few in engineering.

Prominent Journalists.

Missouri's three men who have won national and international reputations in Journalism are Joseph B. McCullagh, William R. Nelson and Walter Williams. As editor of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat McCallagh made a success. He made a paper with an honest policy and a large circulation.

In starting and editing the Kansas City Star Nelson established the paper of the Middle West and made it one of the greatest conservative papers of this country.

Walter Williams showed in editing the Columbia Missouri Herald that the greatest editors do not always come from the ranks of the city editors. He made his paper the best country weekly in the state and gained world reputation. Williams was the first president of the Press Congress of the World and the first dean of the School of Journalism of the University of Missouri.

Only One Woman.

Only one woman is classed in Missouri's Hall of Fame by Mr. Shoemaker. This is Clara Hoffman, called Missouri's Great Heart. Mrs. Hoffman was the first president of the Missouri W. C. T. U. and worked faithfully all her life in the fight against the saloon.

Alexander W. Doniphan and John J. Pershing are given as Missouri's two great soldiers. Doniphan fought against the Mormons in the Far West, and was a general during the Mexican Wara. Doniphan's Expedition of One Thousand Missourians is famous this country over. John J. Pershing has received the highest military honor of this country in being America's commanding general in France. By several human sketches of him and his life Mr. Shoemaker makes us see John Pershing, the man not the commander.

Many Are Statesmen.

From the rank of statesmen come most of those in Missouri's Hall of Fame. The first two delegates to Congress from the territory of Missouri and Missouri's first Congressman are told of in sketches of Edward Hempstead, Rufus Easton and John Scott. David Barton, nicknamed Little Red, was Missouri's first United States Senator. Thomas Hart Benton was the other senator and he is classed in this book as the greatest statesman of the West. It was he that pointed out the possibility of great trade relations with the Far East and in doing so made the famous statement that all Missourians have heard, "There is the East, theis is India." Three other famous senators from Missouri are also sketched, Lewis L. Linn, David Atchison and James S Green. Lewis Linn is called the model senator from Missouri.

James S. Rollins is termed by Mr. Shoemaker, "the father of the University of Missouri." By speaking in favor of a bill to establish the University of Missouri he influenced its passage. He served both in the State Legislature and in Congress and in both places was a strong advocate for better and more advanced education. While in Congress he introduced the bill establishing the Missouri State College of Agriculture.

First Cabinet Member.

Edward Bates was the first man west of the Mississippi to hold a cabinet office. He was appointed Attorney-General of the United States in President Lincoln's cabinet.

A statesman, soldier and leader of men was Frank P. Blair. His statute stands in Washington today with that f Thomas Hart Benton as the two representative men of Missouri. Blair was one of the stanch Democrats of the old time days but he opposed their stand on the slavery question. Blair was a close friend of President Lincoln and was one of the most influential men of his day.

James Shields, soldier and statesman, is claimed by three states and in the making of all of these three states he was influential. He was a veteran of three wars, the Seminole War, the Mexican War, and the Civil War, and he was United States Senator from three states, Illinois, Minnesota and Missouri.

Author of 13th Amendment.

The author of the thirteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States, which abolished slavery, was John Brooks Henderson. The career of Henderson in public life was short, according to Mr. Shoemaker, but in the short time he served he achieved much

Succeeding Henderson as United States Senator was Carl Schurz, states man, orator and journalist. As a lover of democracy he was its ardent exponent on all occasions. After serving in the Senate he was editor of several papers, going at last to be editor of Harper's Weekly. Schurz is also claimed by three states but it is in Missouri that he performed his greatest service.

A Senator for 30 Years.

Francis Marion Cockrell was senator from Missouri for thirty years. Cockrell was so highly respected that, although a Democrat, which meant that he must retire from the Senate when the Republican President, Roosevelt, came in, he was appointed as a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Roosevelt, in giving his reason for doing this, said that the gov ernment could not afford to lose such a faithful and courageous servant.

One of Missouri's greatest lawyers was George Graham Vest, called Missouri'e Little Giant. He also served for many years in the United States Senate.

Richard Pars Bland is represented to us by Mr. Shoemaker as a man of the people, a man who by his sheer will and thorough honesty rose to be one of the greatest public men this state has ever had. He served twelve terms in Congress and had been elected to the thirteenth term at the time of his death.

A Good Citizen.

A man from Missouri who will be remembered always for his service as a soldier and as a statesman but most of all as a public citizen is William Warner, a native of Wisconsin but a true Missourian by life and work

The last chapter in this books is devoted to Champ Clark, Missouri's first speaker in the House of Representatives. The career of Champ Clark is not yet ended but the completed part of it has been most interesting. Mr. Shoemaker tells of his political career, his love of books and children and ends the account with several of the famous Champ Clark sayings among which is that one: "He serves his party best who serves his country best."

William Birkenholz, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Birkenholz of Pickering, arrived home yesterday from Camp Dodge, Ia., where he has been for several weeks. Previous to that he was at Camp Custer, Mich., entering there last July. He has been released from military service.

There Is a Woman—

In our town, living on West Second street, who has always been known for serving the "larpinist good" stuff, and lately for tea cakes she has been serving a raisin filled cookie which is about the best yet. Here is the recipe:

1 cup sugar, ¾ cup butter, ¼ cup sweet milk, 2 eggs beaten well, 3 teaspoons baking powder, pinch of salt, flavoring; add enough flour to roll well. Filling—1 cup ground raisins, 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup boiling water; cook until quite thick. Roll the cookies very thin, cut out and put a teaspoon of filling on each cookie. Then place another one on top, pressing the edges well together. Bake in quick oven.

TO GO SIGHTSEEING IN EUROPE

Overseas Forces Are Given Permission to Visit France and England Before Coming Home.

London, (By Mail).—The American Doughboy again has hopes of becoming a "tripper" and seeing something of England before he is demobilized back to the U. S. A.

Thousands of the boys in France had builded hopes upon prospect of leave with privilege of spending the time in England. The ruling that the Yanks could not come across the channel has been followed by this cable, posted on the bulletin boards, which brings news of affairs back home:

"Washington—Liberal policy granting furloughs to members of oversea forces to visit England and other countries in Europe, has been adopted by General Pershing with the consent of the War Department."

It has always been a part of the educative policy of the War Department at Washington to allow American soldiers, when abroad, to see and learn as much of the countries and people they visit as possible. It had practically been decided when the armistice was signed to allow men to come to England on leave in large numbers. This was vetoed by the Medical Division of the War Department, which objected to the climatic conditions in England, and to the crowded condition of her cities. To a large extent both of these objections have been met by the American Y. M. C. A., and other organizations, which can accommodate and look after about 6,000 men daily.

George W. Perkins, chairman of the finance committee of the National War Council, when in London recently, did not believe at that time that many U. S. soldiers would be given leave to visit England, en route to America, but the cable from Washington indicates that leave to a limited number of men per month may be again allowed.

Washington Banker Tells Senate Committee Comptroller of Treasury "Terrorizes Banking World"

Washington, Feb. 11.—John Skelton Williams, renominated by President Wilson as controller of the treasury, has so "terrorized the banking world that few bankers dare to come to Washington to give testimony against him," Wade Cooper, president of the Union Savings Ban kof this city told the senate banking and currency committee today. Cooper was testifying on the Weeks resolution abolishing the office of controller of treasury. He had spoken only a few sentences when the committee decided by a vote of five to four to hear him in executive session.

Some people's idea of conducting a newspaper is: Print the news no matter what it is, just so it ain't about me.

Confession: I confess, brethren, that the more I study the theory of the transmigration of souls the better I like the idea. It seems to me that I would like to return to this earth again and again—"I have so much to do when I return." FUNSTON "ZONE" IS GONE.

Junction City, Kan., Feb. 10.—The famous "Camp Funston Zone," the first and said to be the only one of its kind in connection with an army camp has "silently folded its tents" and gone its way.

More than 100,000 men have been trained here, and all of them have patronized the zone, which boasted every kind of shop except a millinery shop along its broad street. Anything almost a soldier wanted to buy could be had. When camp officials notified the shop owners that after February 1 but 10,000 men would be located here, they decided it was time to move.

A GAME WITH WESLEYANS

Normals Will Take on the Cameron Five Saturday Night—Two Other Games To Be Played at Home

Coach Merlin Sims announces the scheduling of a basketball game with Missouri Wesleyan College of Cameron to be played here Saturday night. This game is substituted for the contest with Westminster College of Fayette, which had been scheduled for tomorrow night aand which was canceled yesterday by the Westminster officials.

The Normal authorities have been having an unusual amount of trouble in getting games this season, this being the second game to be canceled by a visiting team. A game with the Springfield Normal five was called off by the Springfield school because of a misunderstanding between that school and Tarkio college. Tarkio refused to make the southern trip and Springfield thereupon cancelled her proposed swing around the northern end of the circuit.

The Westminster game was cancelled for a similar reason, Westeminster refusing to make the trip unless a game could be played with Missouri Wesleyan on the same trip This Westminster claims the Cameron college refused to do, while Cameron lays the blame at Westminster's door. Coach Sims immediately got into communication with both schools and succeeded in scheduling the game with Missouri Wesleyan for Saturday night.

Besides the Wesleyan game Saturday at least two more games will be played here, and both of these are expected to be big attractions, one of them being with the ancient rival, Tarkio, and the other with Kansas City Polytechnic Institute, one of the fastest aggregations in the state
